- Members representing the Club in East of Scotland tennis competitions must also be members of the Lawn Tennis Association (LTA) (there is no fee for this).

- Intermediate members (14 to 17 years old) have equal playing and booking rights to adult members.

2.5.5 Conduct on court

- Squash, with both players occupying the same space, is potentially hazardous. Hitting an opponent with either ball or racket may lead to serious injury. Members should be aware of the rules of squash that relate to player safety. In particular you should make no attempt to play the ball if:
 - Your opponent is blocking your access to the ball;
 - Your opponent is in a position where you risk hitting them with either your racket or the ball;
 - Your opponent is not giving you the option to hit any part of the front wall directly;
 - You have allowed the ball to hit the side wall, rebound off the back wall and come round to the other side of your body before you hit it. This is referred to in the rules as turning.
- In all these situations you should stop and ask your opponent for a let. You and your opponent will need to decide whether a let should be played or a point awarded to either the receiver or non-receiver depending on the particular circumstances. This requires a knowledge of the rules, which are displayed on the notice board.
- Do not use offensive language whilst on court nor make unnecessary noise.
